THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Again Change the Route of the West Virginia Gas Company's Pipe Line through the County Poor Farm and along the Eim Grove Road—The Conditions.

Another special meeting of that somewhat erratic body, the Board of County Commissioners, was held vesterday afternoon, at the request of the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia, which, it is understood, paid the per diem of the members. The meeting took place in one of the court rooms in order to accommodate Mr. Stocker, who made has appearance for the second or third time in nearly a year, and who has not learned how to get about on one leg well enough to climb stairs very well. The other members present were Mr. Peterson, who presided, and Messra. Boring, Picket, Nichols and Stein. There were also present Messra. W. H. Hearne and Alfred Caldwell, attorneys for the company, Messra. Lambing and Davis, the superint andent and engineer, and Colonel A. J. There were also present Messrs. W. H. Hearne and Alfred Coldwell, attorneys for the company, Messrs. Lambing and Davis, the superintendent and engineer, and Colonel A. J. Sweeney, one of the directors.

The company wanted another route across the Infirmary farm and along the Wheeling and Elm Grove county road, and it presented an ordinance authorizing the change.

The route asked for does not run across the Infirmary grounds in front of the buildings as originally proposed. The new route taken outside of Major Loring's property, after a fallure to negotiate with new route taken outside of Major Loring's property, after a failure to negotiate with him and after the condemnation proceedings were taken, did not make this necessary. On the contrary, to suit the company's convenience, only a very small plat of ground belonging to the Infirmary is taken and then the line runs along the road and up back of the buildings, keeping along the road all the time and on over the bridge on the Elm Grove road and from there as originally intended. Arriving at Fulton the new ordinance provided for a branch main to run down Fulton street, over the bridge at the paper mill and continuing up and around the Peninsula road to a point on the creek near the Baltimore & Ohio stone bridge, under the east arch and along the east back of the creek until near the Central Glass Works, where it crosses to a gasometer building to be built near the corner of Fourtent and McChloch street.

of Fourteenth and McColloch streets.

The ordinance that granted the company the right to cross the Infirmary grounds in front of the buildings stipulated that the county should have gas free for five years and after that to be charged only 50 percent of the price charged in town. The new ordinance, as a matter of course, contained no such provision. During the discussion that took place if was proposed that the company be allowed to change only 50 percent of the rates charged in town, for the privilege of crossing the year small plees of ground now wanted; then 25 percent less than city rates was suggested; then that it be left to the company's liberality as to what it should charge. A provision that 25 percent less than city rates should not be exceeded by the company in its charges was finally inserted and the ordinances adopted.

Mr. Stein was busy talking when the vote was taken. The Chair called him to order and stated that he desired everyone to vote, whereupon the public spirited and guileless member from Washington district stated that he believed the company would settle the per diem. The situation was explained to him, he voted, and the new ordinance was adopted and the Board adjourned.

The Natural Gas Company of West Virginia will now have three mains heading into the city, which insures their consumers a supply of gas at all times. Instead of running into the creek as it comes off the Peninsula road, it will endeavor to secure from the city the right to cross the Cemetery bridge and come up to the Central works, via McColloch street, thereby evading some very bad to the Central works, via McColloch street, thereby evading some very bad grades that would be encountered on the creek route. Immense Crowd.

The pienic given on the grounds of the State Fair Association yesterday by the Butchers' Association was a moneter affair. It was a great day for a pienic; the thermometer ranged in the nineties, but the heat, while it melted collars and onlis and made freehly starched secrecus, except hay limp and applied the uverty er-coats hang limp and spoiled the pretty drapery of white dresses, did not appadrapery of white dresses, did not apparently, have any effect upon the spirits of the people, who drank beer, danced with vigor and enthusiasm, stood in the hot sun to see the horse races, then drank and danced again, and so on until the shades of evening began to gather. The Opera House band paraded the streets in the morning and then went to the grounds where it furnished both dancing, and promende music. The daucing and promenade music. The crowd in attendance was enormous; it was crowd in attendance was enormous; it was as large as at any picnic ever held there, if not larger. There were numerous races, trotting and running, and one or two foot races, in which the people took considerable interest and which terminated satisfactorily. The only things to mar the pleasures of the event was the presence of people very woman of the town from this nearly every woman of the town from this and adjoining places and the drunken-ness of several young fellows who were hardly more than boys. These were un-fortunate features that the managers re-gretted, but could not prevent. quantities.

Brandreth's Pills have been used by millions of human beings. Their success is founded upon the theory of reason, and an attentive observation of symptoms of disease. Whatever makes bad digestion breeds disease, and whatever makes good digestion cures disease. Brandreth's Pills makes good digestion, purify the blood, and remove all bad humors out of the body by the organs of the stomach and bowels. They act in harmony with vital action and work of nutrition; the strength increases, the skin and the eye become clear, and the symptoms of the malady are surely rendered milder by their use. They are harmless for all ages and conditions. are harmless for all ages and conditions.
